Government Schools in Pakistan: Harsh Environment for Christians

31 May 2019—ZENIT

NOMAN is a young Catholic living in Karachi, Pakistan. In an interview with Aid to the Church in Need, he talks about the discrimination and mistreatment he experienced at school because of his Christian faith. Here is Noman's story:

"I am a first-year student of business. My hobbies include cricket and soccer. I am a Christian. No one in my family has been kidnapped or victimized by violence, but I have faced discrimination from classmates and teachers because of my religion.

"When I reported a Muslim classmate for cheating, the teacher said: 'He doesn't cheat. You did it.' The classmate called me 'bhangie', which means 'street sweeper' or 'gutter cleaner'; he made fun of me and used words that were disrespectful of my faith. But I could not respond in kind. If I had done so, I could've been charged with blasphemy, and my family would have suffered. So I stayed silent.

"Both my teacher and my principal were well-aware of the situation. My mother was called in to speak with my teacher, but they were not ready to listen to my version of what happened. They even refused to give me a form that the school required for exams—so one year of my studies was wasted.

"But I am thankful to God, who has not abandoned my family. He was there when a friend of my mother offered to pay for my education, which my parents could not afford at the time. The happiest moment of my life was when I completed High School; I was the first person to do so in my family.

"I now study business at a government college. I attend classes for half the year; I spend the other half working as a salesman at the mall because it is hard for my father to cover all the family's living expenses. Even in hardship, God has never forsaken me. He has always helped and loved me. God and my family, especially my mother, are the reasons for my happiness.

"Despite what I've experienced, I believe that I will be successful. And when I worry, I recite Psalm 23; I always carry a rosary with me as well.

"Western countries should support poor Pakistani Christian students with housing and academic opportunities so that they can at least lead better, more stable lives. Otherwise, I have no hope for Pakistan's minorities remaining in the country. If I could gather all of the world's leaders in one room, I would say that I only want free education for our children."

US: Bishops Publish Book on Pope's Teachings on the Devil

Shows How to Avoid the Tricks of the Enemy

29 May 2019—ZENIT

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) is releasing a commanding new book featuring a survey of Pope Francis's important teachings on the history of the devil, his empty promises and works, and how we can actively combat him. Written for a wide audience, Rebuking the Devil shows us how to recognize the tricks of the enemy, avoid his traps and defeat his efforts through the power of God in Jesus Christ.

Rebuking the Devil is available for purchase through the USCCB's online bookstore and can be ordered at <http://store.usccb.org/rebuking-the-devil-p/7-608.htm>

While the text does affirm the reality of the devil, Pope Francis also offers wisdom in following God's righteous laws and keeping our eyes fixed on the sovereignty of Jesus as we battle evil in our own lives and in the world.

"In this important book, Pope Francis tells us how to use powerful tools of spiritual combat against the devil including the Word of God, adoration of God in the Blessed Sacrament, participation in the Sacraments, fasting, prayer and the intercession of Mary, Mother of God, through the Most Holy Rosary," said Bishop Michael F. Burbidge of Arlington, Chairman of the U.S. Bishop's Committee on Communications. "We must recognize that there is a devil who is alive and active, but there is also a shield against him through the power of Jesus Christ!"
